Interesting examining my feelings about expulsion of German-speakers from Czechoslovakia. (Wikipedia: http://en.m.wikipedia.org/wiki/Expulsion_of_Germans_from_Czechoslovakia)

Mass population transfers can't work, IMHO. Everything gets messed up and the folk who know best how to exist in the affected area are replaced by others who don't have that knowledge, even if otherwise transfers are peaceful.

Changing the borders to suit the action situation might be better, although that puts me in agreement with the Bohemian corporal's Sudetenland demands.

Far better to have no borders: we're all the same species and diseases don't respect borders.

Why am I ranting about this? I guess the Ukrainian situation is annoying me more than I realised.
